Fervent Appeal For Peace
Is Voiced By Pope Pius XI

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 16—(INS)—A fervent appeal for peace, accompanied by the significant statement that "We are straining to procure it," was voiced by Pope Pius XI today at the secret consistory, where he created twenty new cardinals, the largest elevation to that rank in a century.

"We have not neglected in the past, and will not neglect in the future, to affirm and solemnly repeat to all men of good will, to whatever land they belong, that we ardently desire peace," the Pope said.

The Pope's allocution to the consistory, attended by 23 cardinals, recalled his reasons "for joy and sadness" during the year just closing.

Among the joys, he enumerated "the triumphal demonstrations of faith" at the Lourdes pilgrimage and the Eucharistic congresses at Buenos Aires and Cleveland, Ohio. His reasons for "profound sorrow" included "events in Russia, Mexico, and, in part, also in Germany."

Turning, then, to the Italo-Ethiopian conflict, His Holiness continued:

"We do not want to mention those conflicts which preoccupy not only Europe and Africa, but which

BEREA IN SECOND GAME OF SEASON

Tonight's Fray to Aid Alumni Fund; Will Take Place of Contest with Former U. K. Netmen

FOE EXPECTED TO BE GOOD OPPONENT

Coach Rupp Will Start Same Lineup as in Georgetown Game

Kentucky's practice-weary varsity basketball team will swing into action at 8 o'clock tonight for the second time this season when the Wildcats take the court against Berea College in a game sponsored by the University alumni association.

In former years, the 'Cats have opposed a representative Alumni court team in an annual early-season contest for the benefit of the Alumni association fund, but this year arrangements were made to bring Berea here in order to provide a harder test for Coach Rupp's cagers.

Because this game is not a regularly scheduled one, students will be asked to pay ten cents with their student books. General admission will be 25 cents and box seats will cost 40 cents.

Although Coach Rupp has been trying hard for the past two or three weeks, he was unable to schedule another college team to give the Kentuckians a workout before the Pittsburgh engagement next Monday night. However, it is expected that Berea's Mountaineers will provide a good opponent for the 'Cats.

Coach Rupp said yesterday that he would start the same five men who were in the lineup at the opening of the Georgetown game. He will have Ralph Carlisle, high scorer to date, and "Smoky Joe" Hagga at the forward berths, Garland Lewis at center, and Captain Andy Anderson and Warfield Donohoe in the backcourt.

Two guards, James Goforth and "Duke" Ellington, who have been pressing closely on the heels of Donohoe and Anderson, have been on the casualty list but will probably see action tonight. Goforth has been troubled with blisters which became infected, while Ellington has been suffering with a wrenched back.

If the first-stringers show up well enough to warrant their removal, Rupp will use Cortland Bliss, Billy Spicer and "Red" Craig as forwards and J. Rice Walker at center. These men gave a good account of themselves in the opening game and may yet force themselves into regular jobs.

There will be no preliminary game tonight.

Radio Drama to Be
Feature at Dinner

Faculty Members Will Enact Roles of Several Well-known Stars

A faculty radio drama will be one of the main attractions of the first of a series of Faculty club dinners to be held at 6:30 o'clock Thursday evening in the Commons.

The drama will present faculty members enacting the roles of several well-known stars.

In addition to the radio skit the program will include Christmas music and readings, group singing and a recitation "A Visit from St. Nick" with sound effects.

may be said to concern the whole world, because there is so much uncertainty among events and men, that there is danger that our words, no matter what they might be, either would not be well understood, or would be openly misinterpreted.

"After all, that which could have been expected from us justly and legitimately in favor of truth and justice and charity, we have manifested many times.

"We know that the words pronounced by us in various circumstances have been widely spread by the press, and that they cannot have failed to come to the knowledge of those who not only desire the truth, but who ask it of us with sincere and lively interest.

"Let this serve as a warning, particularly to those who still seem to waver or be scandalized, as if we had not accomplished our divine mission as master of the faithful.

"But we have not neglected in the past, and will not neglect in the future, to affirm and solemnly repeat, to all men of good will, to whatever land they belong, that we ardently desire peace, and are straining to procure it.

"Furthermore, we are praying to God for that peace which is joined with justice, truth and charity."

All Campus Dance

The final all-campus dance before the Christmas holidays will be held Wednesday night from 8 until 10 o'clock in the Alumni gymnasium. Music for the hop will be furnished by Shiny Herington's orchestra. It was announced. Dress will be informal and tickets will cost 25 cents.

Note Sealed In
Bottle Returned
To Co-ed at U.K.

When Alice Bailey, University student, put her name and address on a piece of note paper, sealed it in a bottle and threw it in the Kentucky river last July, she probably didn't expect ever to see it again.

She received a real surprise last Tuesday afternoon, however, when, on opening a letter, she drew forth the same piece of paper. The bottle had been found by Eddie Hilger, Louisville, while he was target practicing on the river bank Thanksgiving morning. Collecting bottles along the river bank to use as targets, Eddie found the one with the note enclosed, and shot off the top, which had rusted on, with his rifle.

His letter disclosed the fact that he would like a reply, which request is being filled. Alice only hopes that Eddie isn't colored.

All members of the YMCA are urged to be present. The price will be 25 cents a plate. Tickets can be purchased from Bart Peak or any member of the Senior cabinet.

FRAT HOLDS CEREMONIES

The sixty-sixth anniversary of the founding of Phi Delta Phi, legal fraternity, was celebrated Friday by the chapter with a luncheon at the Patio. The program consisted of a short history of the fraternity given by Jack Keyser and the origin of the local Inn given by acting Dean Murray.

Although avoiding most opposition questions attempting to draw him out on the issue of the Hoare-Laval peace proposals, Eden did say that consistency with the covenant was an "indispensable condition" of any settlement which the British government would accept.

By requesting the House to wait for Thursday's debate for a "full statement" on the widely-attacked Anglo-French peace plan, which would give half of Ethiopia to Italy, Eden saved off temporarily the real storm brewing among an irate public and Parliament.

However, his statement that the covenant would be honored was calculated to calm for a time at least widely-expressed fears that Britain and France were preparing to "betray" Ethiopia and the League of Nations.

It was the first time this view had been expounded so officially by a member of the government since details of the Hoare-Laval plan were made public.

UK INTRAMURAL
FINALS WILL BE
THURSDAY NIGHT

LARGE CROWD WILL WITNESS MATCHES

Sixteen bouts to comprise "First Circus" at Alumni Gym

Finals for the intramural boxing and wrestling show, staged by the athletic department of the University, will be held in Alumni gymnasium Thursday night at 8 o'clock. The admission charge will be twenty-five cents.

The stage for this great fighting show has been changed from the gym annex to the Alumni gym in order to accommodate the large crowd that is expected to turn out for these bouts. A great deal of interest has been manifested in this year's "fight circus," and the management enthusiastically anticipates the popularity and enthusiasm that the students have shown at the fights.

The field this year comprises nearly all new men. There are only four defending champions in both the boxing and wrestling departments. Langan Hay, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, is the defending champion in the 165 pound class of wrestlers. His title is at stake Thursday night when he steps into the ring with Bob Olney, a Delta representative. Sigma Bryant, also a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity, will be defending his 175 pound class wrestling title when he locks grips with E. Lynch, a Kappa Alpha.

The two defending champions in the boxing show will be Jim Westbrook, a Phi Tau, whose 145-pound title will be at stake when he enters the ring to match blows with Jim Carrel, Delta Chi. An interesting scrap is foreseen when the two 165 pounders begin exchanging blows. Bob Forsythe, defending champion, is matched with Bob Davis, who won the middleweight boxing title of Ohio last summer.

Sixteen bouts have been arranged, eight boxing and eight wrestling. The boxing participants and their weights are: 165 pound class, M. G. Karsner, Independent; vs. T. J. Grange, Phi Kappa; 125 pound class, H. Stewart, Independent; vs. C. Justice, Sigma Chi; 135 pound class, B. Curry, Independent; vs. Bob Evans, SAE; 145 pound class, Jim Westbrook, Phi Tau, vs. J. Carrel, Delta Chi; 155 pound class, Jimmie Irvine, SAE, vs. C. D. Morat, Independent; vs. Bob Tabelling, Phi Tau; heavyweights, Buck Jones, Independent; vs. W. Thompson, Independent.

Wrestling showmen and their weights are: 115 pound class J. Chester, Sigma Chi, vs. W. Jones, Sigma Chi; 125 pound class, M. Porden, Sig Ep, vs. B. Howard, Sig Ep; 135 pound class, C. Kelley, Sig Ep, vs. W. Ford, Independent; 145 pound class, C. Haley, Sigma Chi, vs. H. Dotson, Sigma Chi; 155 pound class, B. Levi, Independent, vs. T. McGoldrick, Alpha Gamma Rho; 165 pound class, Bob Olney, Delta Tau Delta, vs. Langan Hay, SAE; 175 pound class, Gene Bryant, SAE, vs. E. Lynch, Kappa Alpha; heavyweights, E. Simpson, SAE, vs. L. Dawson, Independent.

Alpha Delta Sigma will meet in the kernel business office Wednesday at 1 o'clock. A very important meeting and everyone please be there.

Britain Wants Scrap Settled
On League of Nations Basis

LONDON, Dec. 16—(INS)—The British government stands firm on its thesis that any settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute must be consistent with the League of Nations covenant. Anthony Eden, Minister for League affairs, told the House of Commons today.

Although avoiding most opposition questions attempting to draw him out on the issue of the Hoare-Laval peace proposals, Eden did say that consistency with the covenant was an "indispensable condition" of any settlement which the British government would accept.

Annual Christmas
Carol Program Is Given By Vespers

Large Audience Attends Impressive Sunday Musicales

By DAVE SALYERS

The largest crowd to listen to a Sunday afternoon musicale in several seasons heard the University Choristers, under the direction of Miss Mildred Lewis, present their annual Christmas carol program as the eighth in the series of vesper programs Sunday afternoon at 4 p. m. in Memorial hall.

This year's performance by the singers, who were assisted by Lee Crook, violinist, Lela Cullis, organist, and Mary Rudicle, harpist, far surpassed any previous presentation. The blending of the voices, the tonal quality, and the attacks and releases of the singers combined to create the best possible effect in each number.

The singers were dressed in black robes and white surplices and stood in choir arrangement on a stage impressively decorated with Christmas greens. The entire program was presented by candlelight. As is the custom, the audience joined in the singing of old familiar carols during the intermission.

The choristers entered to the professional "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear." An organ solo, Christmas Evening, from the "Sicilian Suite" by Mauro-Cottone, followed, after which the "Carol of the Russian Children" was presented by the ensemble. Following numbers were "Lo, How a Rose E'er Blooming," by Praetorius; a men's chorus, "Old French Christmas Carol." (Continued on Page Four)

COL. J. H. GRAHAM

Dean Graham Discusses Need of Efficient Engineering Corps; Was A.E.F. Colonel During War

At the meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers held at 7 o'clock Friday evening, Dean Graham spoke on "Military Engineering in France during the World War."

Dean Graham, a colonel in the Engineering Corps of the A. E. F., served in France during the conflict. He emphasized the importance of an adequate and efficient engineering corps to the success of army warfare. He described, with the aid of a large military map of France, the location and building of warehouses, railroad terminals, hospitals and roads.

During the latter part of the war Dean Graham was in charge of building docks at various points on the seacoast. He also described the difficulty of maintaining roads along the front line.

Colonel Graham stated that a "man must change his entire viewpoint during the war, for money and materials do not count; time being the ever important factor."

HERE SHALL THE KERNEL ALL
STUDENT RIGHTS MAINTAIN

HOW TO MISUSE ONE'S RIGHTS

In the Friday edition of The Kernel, under the column headed "Student Opinion," appeared an excellent example of how a small group of students can become so obsessed with their opinions that they become blind to all sense of proportion in the general fitness of things.

Of course, everyone has an inalienable right to his own opinion. Recognizing this, The Kernel, published the aforesaid letter. However, The Kernel, lest it be misunderstood, does not endorse the premises contained in the letter.

The Kernel believes it only fair to warn this organization that it is "barking on a cold trail." The University of Kentucky is an institution for the citizens of Kentucky. Naturally, the thought, spirit and general welfare of those citizens are reflected largely in the attitude of its students. The people of Kentucky are as American as the stars and stripes on the flag; they will not tolerate Socialism, extreme Liberalism, Redism or any other "ism." There is no place in the University of Kentucky for an organization such as the L. I. D. sets itself up to be.

If this small group of students wishes to set itself up as desiring a "social change" in our order, then they have the right to do so, unless, of course, they interfere with the normal course of life at the University; however, to ask official recognition of such a group, discloses a disposition that takes too much for granted, and an utter lack of the real understanding of the University's ideals and those of its students. Believing this, The Kernel heartily approves the action of President McVey and the Senate in refusing to give to this organization official consideration.

As an organ of the University, The Kernel cannot refrain from a rather smug satisfaction in its belief that neither the L. I. D. nor any other organization of its kind can survive on this campus. When the spokesman for this club says in his letter, "persons . . . all agreed that the present social and economic order has failed because it no longer provides opportunity or even security for the common man . . . it should be replaced by a new social order . . . based upon collective ownership . . ." we can only smile, remembering the time when our mother told us we were getting too big for our breeches.

As a matter of fact "all agreed" that the nostrums supplied by the L. I. D. are the panacea for our ills? Indeed, are "all agreed" that the present social order should be replaced by a new social order, based on "collective ownership," ycleped Communism?

GRATIFYING

Each year the competition for the Kentucky Rhodes Scholarship is keen, but this year the University of Kentucky placed itself at the top of the list in the state by producing both of the winners.

It was indeed a compliment to the administration and faculty of the University when Elvis J. Stahr and Henry Spragens were selected to represent the state in the regional competition in Chicago, where representatives from five other states will be vying for the privilege of attending Oxford for two years.

It is only logical that the winners should be from an institution which has greater facilities whereby an individual may enhance his capacity to be outstanding in the fields of scholarship, sports, social life and many other extra-curricular activities. However, this has not been the case in the past, and it is gratifying to see such a remarkable improvement.

We extend our congratulations to these two men, and hope that the same privilege will be ours when the results of the regional contest are announced.

Famed soloists and some of the world's finest music organizations will be heard by an immense music appreciation "class"—2000 strong—offered at Northwestern.

ROAD TO THRIFT

If a survey were to be made of the number of students who keep an account of their expenditures, it doubtlessly would show a woeful minority of them in comparison with the total enrolled.

How much did you spend last month? How much are you spending this month? Do you realize what amount the "shekels" you spent for refreshments here, for cigarettes there, for movies now and then, have reached? Do you keep an expense account?

The careless, unmethodical student will get his monthly allowance, fiddle it momentarily with the comfortable contemplation that here is enough to carry him through the month, and then place it in his pocketbook and carry it around with him. He will then spend a little here and there for unnecessary luxuries, and before he realizes it his supply has dwindled, and he hasn't enough to buy an emergency requirement, such as ink, stationery, stamps, and so on.

The student with foresight, on the other hand, will put away his monthly allowances and permit himself an allotment of so much to spend each week. He keeps an expense account so that he may tell from week to week where his money is going. He can see where he should direct expenditures, where he can afford to spend a little more. His weekly allowance always gives him a certain reserve on hand so that he will never be caught unawares when he runs out of tooth paste, ink, or some such necessities.

In what class do you belong? Have you found yourself penniless two weeks before the monthly allowance is due because of thoughtless spending? Or has your expense account guided you to a thrifty, careful system of purchasing? Keep an expense account. It will guide your pocketbook. It is the road to thrift.—The Daily Athenaeum, University of West Virginia.

COLLEGIATE ENTERTAINMENT

Widespread as have been the changes of the past four years in the fields of economics and social relationships, few of these fields have undergone such radical changes for the better than that of the range and scope of entertainment possibilities of collegians.

Geared up to the high pressure life of their time, it was not unnatural that the means and types of entertainment of the average college student were expensive, widely scattered, and frequently of a very shallow nature. It seemed to be an avenue of escape from the very world which they were building, a world that produced a jazz and gin combination of time-clock performance of intellectual exercises to be dropped and avoided except during "hours."

Perhaps through financial necessity, perhaps through the influence of an inner yearning, perhaps by accident, the average chap found himself and, consequently, found pleasure and contentment in a number of quieter, more regular, interrelated activities. Not that stalling youth can be called progress of any sort, but when youth, of its own accord, adopts measures of entertainment that blend in harmony with the topics and interests of their lives, then progress is being made.

Paramount among the advanced agencies of entertainment is the radio. What was formerly a novelty and an awkward youngster in the scientific world is now being changed into a disciplined agency for enjoyment and enlightenment.

The screen, in the past year or so, has made strides toward a new height of excellence. Actors, themes and treatment and improving in a whole series of classic presentations of old and new stories. The stage, too, is assuming a deeper and finer meaning as wayward and groping playwrights head for the ideal of true, balanced and temperate presentation of themes that count.

But important though the above are in the scheme of useful entertainment, there is still another of prime importance in the educational advancement of the people—the revival of conversation.

After a serious lapse the American youth is finally becoming coherent, trying out his ideas, finding out that which he knows, that which he thinks is so, and that which he does not know. It is by this last means that we believe the greatest gains will be made in the years just ahead, for through this exchange of ideas will men's minds be made more elastic, their convictions become crystallized more firmly in the light of discussion, and will their understanding and fellowship and human progress be most richly realized.—The Purdue Exponent, Purdue University.

Mr. Bob Hess has objected of late to the ill' girls and the ill' boys (bless um) have taken on a coyly co'umn-conseious attitude when he heaves into view, so he has grudgingly consented to let two innocent bystanders sling the slush this week. "And may it please you."

To Go To Church (?). With due respect to our superior we'll stick to his favorite item of the press—Kay Kennedy—who has males to burn and mail that she should burn. Among the latter was a Sunday School announcement on which was scribbled, "How about a date some time, Honey? Red Davis."

And So, Farewell. Deciding that New York and Florida are better places to try her wings than Dunn's and the Commons, Whitty Huguette is just another pledge whose departure the Kappas mourn. So Johnny Eversole gave up the Ghost, too.

The Poor, Poor Girl. Jack May is gonna have to give up the pursuit of knowledge. To quote that worthy gentleman: "Classes in the morning, basketball in the afternoon and the evening is all that is left for 'Sorry' (Craft)."

A Hunting She Must Go. We hear that what was once a "Bud" in the heart of Pat O'Rear has failed to bloom. And she took Botany, too. Ben Cooper says "Goody." He thinks he's got something there.

Commercially Minded? With Mr. Mae looking on and trying to overlook, Phil McGee does his best to entertain Dot Babbitt in his office. (Wonder if his best is good 'nuff).

Just A Struggle Buggy. Pete Kuraehk says that the only reason Mary Chauvet went to the fight Tuesday was to see him wrestle. How do you do at home, Pete?

After Seven Years. If Richie Baker doesn't quit looking little and helpless at Charles Barr, Alice Guernant is gonna be one of those ex's like the X and the Horseshoe that the Chios sing about. Alice is still regretting that she didn't pawn his pin while she had it.

Open Season for Squirrels. Meade Brown masquerading as an oak tree, with mistletoe dangling about his brain cell, got very few offers at the sorority houses he invaded Sunday night. The hanging of the green, we suppose. (Hope someone will give this due consideration). KLIPPINGS FROM THE KEYBOARD—The man in the tent, Jimmy Scudder, has been domesticated to the point of pinning glamorous Virginia Logan. . . . Dot Moore won the prize for pinning the tail on the donkey at the Kappa Sig "kid" party, but she says she was even better when they played kissing games. . . . The Delta Chis and the Alpha Lambda Taus have merged, and now have a bigger and better lodge with three beds for each member. . . . Dot Curtis wonders why the furniture in the Kappa house breaks down, while that in the fraternity houses remains so sturdy. Look around you, my good woman. . . . Whose SAE pin was Frances Sledde trying to cover with her coat one day last week? . . . If you spend four years in college, you're wasting your time—in fact you're wasting over $1 hours listening to rolls being called. Figure it out for yourself. . . . Every time L. E. Fish opens his mouth in Law class, he puts his foot in it, and Mr. Hess stuffs it in farther. . . . Horse Laifs were the feature of "The Taming of the Shrew." . . . There was a very select crowd at the Cadet Hop, thanks to those who did a little plain and fancy boy-cotting. . . . What student is about to get run over by a steam roller? Better get out of the way Mr. Frankstein. . . .

HIGH SPOTS OF THE INAUGURATION—Ben DeHaven trying to put our colleague, Hess, on the spot, told the latter, that he spent the whole evening trailing Bob and trying to sober him up. 'Tis funny thing about it. . . . Hess doesn't drink and was in Lexington, bested. . . . The Phi Delta, in the interest of the Republican Party, we judge, turned pugilistic and one all-state footballer is wearing the crest of that lodge in a unique place—Labe

Jackson left it on the pug's nose. . . . Dusty Rhodes furnished an apt description of "Happ's" big party. He said that the Intramural Ball made the good old Kentucky Derby look like a 111-Y convention. . . . Not knowing what else to do with it, Sonny Wall threw his overcoat out of a third-story window. It was lucky he remembered to take it off first. . . . Joe Ellen Henderson, lucky little girl, got found out. The guy who has been cou'lin' her fairly steady had his best friend try to take date Ellen the same night the former had a date with her. The friend not only got the late date and was entertained by Joe Ellen till after 3 a. m., but he came back to his friend, the fellow who sent him on his mission, and reported that he thinks he'll start courtin' the girl now. . . . Wonder if it could have been because of a certain girl late-dating him that a certain foolish little boy says, "What's the use? Did you ever want something you can't have? Awful feeling, ain't it? . . . Notice that the girls are doing their Christmas hinting early. . . . The Strangler minstrels was 100 per cent. Can't beat the quartet and Connie Blab's singing. . . . Fuzzell and Huston stole the black-face honors. Congratulations to Strangers, and those behind the scenes, who made the performance possible. . . . Hope this suits Mr. Hess and Mr. Garling, but most of all we hope you dear readers are satisfied. Merry Christmas. . . .

Perhaps you're still pondering about what to give "him" or "her"—those very special gifts. Maybe this will help, 'cause we're routed out the very choicest and unusual ones (all the clerks appreciate our patronizing).—No, thank you, we're just looking!—so much!

To the men: She's probably the best-dressed girl in school, but she'll want to stay that way—keeping your clothes well-dressed is important—so how about some of the latest airplane luggage? After dragging bags on and off trains and having them thrown into baggage cars, especially made to batter them up so you won't know they're yours—well, a new one is quite to the point. Airplane luggage is made in three different styles (it used to be only one) dark brown, reddish brown and tan—shellacked fabric bound in leather. It's very light, too. The keenest one of all is the wardrobe bag—a little longer, with regular wardrobe trunk hangers—really the top for bringing back the new formal she is getting for the holiday dances! And then the fitted bags and the little make-up kits, too, with all the bottles and jars she could wish for. And speaking of the latter reminds us of the latest Arden and Dubarry creations. Elizabeth Arden never lets us down at Christmas time—she has a very pale pink leather kit containing eight of her preparation (her Velve cream is quite the best in its line)—mirror in the top, so she can use it very well on the train. Dubarry did itself proud, too, with a small black leather kit of nine articles, lipstick, compact, eye shadow, powder, tissue cream, foundation cream and cleansing cream. Much as we hate to admit that we need them at all, these are really the sort of things we like to get. Go to Wolf-Wiles.

To the girls: If he's the best beau, why not get him one of those very handsome robes from Graves-Cox? They have them in wine, an almost navy shade and black and white—satin collar, cuffs and belt—and big pockets for the ones who haven't come far enough from the little boy stage of carrying everything from string to snails in their pockets. Luggage is also good for them—these nifty zipper bags that he can pack easily, or the fitted cases with comb, military brushes, shaving doo-dads, etc., in them. Or how would some slippers do? Of course, he isn't to the "pipe and slipper" stage yet, but he might appreciate them for a comfortable evening once in a while—they're really quite port looking—match them up with his robe.

To all of you: Shipp's has an innovation that will really make you sit up and take notice—a Bradley knit robe. It's rose colored with a round collar trimmed in white, long sleeves tight at the wrists with white cuffs. For very reasonable gifts, look at Denton's $1 counter on the first floor. You'll find bath power done up in attractive boxes; half a dozen bars of soap in a cheese tray that'll be handy later on for that after-the-dance party; cut glass perfume bottles; four-piece dresser sets (a powder box, two perfume bottles and a mirror); Durberry's $1 beauty kit which is fine to try out and see if you really like it; Dermay's manure sets in their new octagonal-shaped leather containers. And for the fellows—shaving sets, Woodbury's, Williams', and Colgate's, or a Yardley shaving bowl—gives you do like some fuss and feather now and then! Back to the girls again—Meyer & Hinkle have some luscious looking green and black satin lounging palamas—also robes and lovely hand-made lingerie—and lots of little novelties—evening bags, vanity and lipstick sets, etc. And so to bed—and a very Merry Christmas to you all! (But watch out for that mistletoe!)

The following letter from O. B. Chisholm, B. S. '09, from Wynberg, Cape Province, South Africa, will also be of interest to alumni and students of the University.

"P. O. Box 78

25th October, 1935

The Secretary
Alumni Association
University of Kentucky
Lexington, Kentucky, U.S.A.

Dear Sir:

Having just received the September issue of the Kentucky Alumnus, it revived very pleasant memories of my association with the University, and reminded me to supply you with a few up-to-date details of my position.

I came to this country in 1909 under contract with the old Transvaal Government before the Union of South Africa came into being. Having completed a three years agreement with them, I joined The United Tobacco Cos. (South) Ltd., of the above address, with whom I have been for over 23 years.

I started with them as an itinerant tobacco buyer, subsequently opening one or two new branches in various parts of the country. I was appointed to a directorship six or seven years ago, and have remained on the Executive Board of Directors since.

During my association with this company, business has taken me over practically all of the developed districts of South Africa, and as far north as the present border of Tanganyika Territory. I therefore feel that I really know South Africa better than my home country. Occasionally I see W. B. Wilson, an old Kentucky boy, who is located in Southern Rhodesia, where he is in the business of growing Turkish tobacco.

J. du P. Oothuizen of South Africa, but who attended the University of Kentucky, is also with this company and received his directorship at the same time as myself, and is therefore one of my close associates in head office. I believe one or two other South African boys have attended the University of Kentucky and are in business of the Civil Service in various parts of the country, but unfortunately I do not know them personally and have not come in contact with them since their return from America.

I married Ethel Forest Baldwin of Paris, Kentucky, in 1917, and it looks as if we have definitely settled in this country for good, as we have built a home and have all our interests here.

We still get a thrill from the American football news over the radio, and last Saturday night, 9 p. m. South African time, we listened to a running commentary on the game between Notre Dame and Ann Arbor, broadcast through Boundbrook, N. J. We try to tune in on America for news or music most nights.

I would be pleased to correspond with any Alumnus wishing information from this country.

Yours truly

Kenneth Davis, '15 (Engineering and Journalism), political writer for the Cincinnati Enquirer, has gained a national reputation for remarkable accuracy in predicting the outcome of the municipal elections of 1933 and 1935 in Cincinnati. The recent editorial in the New York Times paying him tribute for his accuracy in his predictions was based on the following facts: on the morning of the election in 1933, his paper predicted the "Charter Group" would receive 51 percent of the popular vote and win five of the nine council seats. The "Charter Group" received 51.13 percent of the popular vote and won five council seats as predicted.

His predictions on the 1935 election made immediately after the 1933 election were: with an independent candidate in the race the Charter Group would win four seats, the Republicans four, and the Independent one seat (4-4-1), and the Charter Group's vote would be 48.89 per cent of the first choice votes. The result of the election was as he had foretold with only a difference of 54 hundredths per cent in the total first choice votes.

William R. Lindsay, '18, is construction superintendent for the installation of "invisible glass show windows, with business address at 240 East 43rd St., New York City. On his recent member blank received at the Alumni Office, he says: "I used to attend the New York K. U. Alumni Association dinner, but the well known depression stopped that. Would like to start again but have lost contact with the Association and other Kentuckians in the city." Mr. Lindsay's home address is 186 Kings on Ave., Floral Park, Long Island, N.Y.

G. Lee McClain, A. B. '19, was appointed acting adjutant general by Gov. A. B. Chandler as his first official act after having been sworn in as Governor of Kentucky, Tuesday, Dec. 10. As a student, Lee took active part in campus activities; he was a member of the Kernel staff, and was on the staff of the Kentuckian. He served also as director of the Strollers and was cadet officer of a battalion. He was class orator in his senior year. After graduation, Lee enlisted in the army and served as lieutenant in the World War. He is a former state commander of the American Legion and a member of the Kentucky Ex-Servicemen's Board. From 1920 to 1922, Lee was on the staff of the Eastern Kentucky State Teachers' College and later accepted the position as the Kentucky representative of the Allyn and Bacon Publishing Company of Chicago. For the past year he has been associated with the John C. Winston Co. Lee has kept in close touch with his alma mater and is a member of the Executive Committee of the Alumni Association.

After graduating from the University, he attended the General Theological Seminary in New York City last May, and since his ordination to the diaconate in June at Christ Church in Lexington, Ky., his home, he has been minister in charge of St. Matthew's Church in Rochester.

By JOE QUINN
Kernel Sports Editor

While the open season for all-star selections is still on, we intend to rush the latest All-southeastern conference team into print. The best part of this late fall sport is that a selector doesn't have to purchase a license to participate.

In a poll conducted by Dan Frank, sports editor of the Mississippi State College student paper, The Reflector, all the other sports editors of student papers in the Southeastern conference schools were given the opportunity to select their team.

We duly filled out a ballot and only yesterday received from Brother Frank the results of the polling. We think it's a representative team and just about as good as any that has been selected thus far by other nominators.

In the first string lineup Gaynell Tinsley of L. S. U. and Willie Geny of Vanderbilt are the ends. Tinsley, said to be the best end in the South since Jerry Dalrymple of Tulane, has been mentioned prominently on a number of All-America teams. Geny, on the other flank, was a great pass receiver and a great leader, as captain, of the Commodores.

Haygood Patterson of Auburn and Justin Rukas of L. S. U. were selected as the tackles. Kentucky players will vouch for Patterson's ability and give him much of the credit for the reputation the Auburn line established for itself.

Rukas was outstanding in L. S. U.'s tough forward wall which will attempt to stem the aerial barrage of Texas Christian in the Sugar Bowl.

Frank Johnson of Georgia and Tarzan White of Alabama were the guard choices. Johnson was his team's outstanding candidate for all-star honors while White played fine ball in every Alabama game this season.

At center, Walter Gilbert, Auburn's fiery pivot-man, got the call. Gilbert was easily the class of southern centers and ranked with the top few of the nation. He was equally good on offense and defense and was one of the sparkplugs of the Plainsman team.

The backfield selections on this mythical conference team were especially good, we thought. At quarterback, Riley Smith was by far the leading candidate. It was not until this season that he got the credit that he was entitled to. An ideal field general, Smith was the main reason for Alabama's success in the past two seasons. He was a fine blocker and could carry the ball as well as direct his team's attack. That he has been selected on a majority of A. I. America teams is a tribute to his ability.

The other backfield posts went to Bob Davis, Kentucky, Ike Pickle, Mississippi State and Jesse Fatheree, L. S. U.

Davis, second leading scorer in the conference and a constant threat to opponents all season, finally secured the recognition which so many of the other selectors denied him. The fact that Davis is a sophomore may have hampered him with other sports writers, but not here. The writers who had seen him play were sufficiently impressed with his performance to choose him for their first team.

Ike Pickle was Mississippi State's greatest threat. A great ball carrier, Pickle led the State team in its victories over Army and Alabama and succeeded in gaining nationwide recognition for Major Ralph Sasse's first Mississippi State team.

Fatheree, L. S. U. fullback, was a big factor in the Tiger drive to a Southeastern conference crown this season. A hard hitter on offense, Fatheree was also a fine defensive back, strengthening the line from his defensive fullback post.

All in all, this first team chosen by the collegiate sports writers, should meet with satisfaction in most quarters. Of course, it is just about impossible to satisfy everybody, so the next best thing to do is satisfy as many as possible. We hope we've done that.

Included on the second conference team were Stanley Nevers, Kentucky's captain-elect at one of the tackles and Bert Johnson, the Ashland Express, in a halfback position.

Jimmy Long, Gene Meyers and Sam Potter all received honorable mention at their respective posts.

Sports editors of student papers at Tulane, Auburn, Mississippi State, Tennessee, Mississippi, Sewanee, Florida, Alabama and Kentucky voted in the poll.

Kentucky's Wildcats will tie off tonight against Berea College in their second start of the current campaign. The contest was not included in the regular schedule but was arranged by the Alumni association.

Tonight's game will serve a double purpose. It will give Coach Adolph Rupp's cagers some much-needed work and will add some much-needed money to the treasury of the Alumni association.

The association has branched out considerably this year and is doing some progressive work keeping graduates in touch with the University. The establishment of headquarters at various football games away from home, one of its newest innovations, proved highly successful this year. Of course it takes some money to carry out their plans and the basketball game, which the association sponsors annually, has helped to a considerable extent. The association particularly deserves the support of the student body.

"Windy" Cline, the boy from the Bronx, who has been announcing at the intramurals, is doing a nice job...he particularly gives the impression of a minor Joe Humphries in his pronunciation of "champion"...his version is "champeon"...Stanley Nevers, Kentucky's new football captain, was one of the guests of honor at a recent tea...which should qualify him to act as Emily Post to the rest of the squad...Kappa Kappa Gamma is back in town after another successful season with the Brooklyn Dodgers pro football team...Kappa finished the season as the league's sixth leading scorer...with 35 points...he may retire permanently from the game...to become a horse-breeder...If there is going to be a baseball team here this year the student body will have to show some interest in it pretty soon...so that plans can be made for the laying-out of a new diamond.

Vespers Present Christmas Program

by Gevaert; a women's chorus, "The Virgin at the Manger," by Perillous; "Bring a Torch, Jeanette, Isabelle," and "Gesu Bambino (The Infant Jesus)," by Pietro Yon, followed by the intermission. Carols sung by the audience and singers during the intermission were "Joy to the World," "O Little Town of Bethlehem," and "Hark! the Herald Angels Sing."

Numbers included in the second part of the program were: "Brightest and Best of the Sons of the Morning," by Combs; "Meditation," by Mielke, in which the singers were assisted by Lee Crook at the violin, Lela Cullis at the organ, and Mary Rudie, harpist; "Adoramus Te," by Palestrina, and the final number, the familiar "Shepherd's Story," by Dickinson. Featured in the final number were Virginia Murrell, soprano soloist, Morton Potter, tenor, and Harlowe Dean, Jr., baritone. The last number was one of the most outstanding and served as a fitting climax to the entire presentation.

A great deal of credit for the able performance is due Miss Mildred Lewis, the director of the singers. Miss Lewis has directed and produced these annual carol programs for the past several years and has made the program one of the most popular of the vespers series.

The next vespers program will be presented Sunday afternoon, January 12, 1936, in Memorial hall, and will feature Lawrence Cook, organist.
